

The Three Big Elephants by 2R

Once upon a time in London Zoo, there lived 3 big elephants. They were getting too big for their enclosures so they decided to build their own houses.

The first elephant built his out of stinky cheese, which was a terrible idea. The second elephant built her house out of white chocolate and the third elephant built her house out of organic pancakes and yummy honey.

The elephants thought they were safe from the fiercest animals in the zoo: the evil mice. They were hiding from them because the mice were angry after the clumsy elephants had accidentally stepped on them.

When the mice found the first elephant's house, they gobbled up the stinky cheese until there was nothing left, so the elephant ran to his sister's house made of white chocolate.

They thought they were safe there, but the evil mice followed them and nibbled up the second house. The two elephants were so afraid that they ran to their other sister's house made of delicious, organic pancakes and extra sticky honey.

"Oh no!" said all the elephants. They realised that the mice would just gobble up that house too. But when the greedy mice tried, they all got stuck in the sticky, sweet and yellow honey.

The elephants made them promise not to eat their house if they rescued them, so they did. And they all lived happily ever after.
